Abstract of the Disclosure

HIGH CONTRAST FAST LIQUID CRYSTAL DISPLAY SYSTEM

An external electronically controlled illumination module utilizing polarizing beam splitters to split the light beam I from a projection lamp into two polarization states, selectively altering the state of each polarized light beam to reject a controlled portion of the light where the selectively altered beams are recombined and passed to the projection system optics.